NOTICE

THE CHINA MAIL.

Out of a crowd of thirty-four gamblers who were brought before Mr. Wise to-day only two admitted that they had not gone to the gambling house 'to look for a friend.' Two of the number were convicted of keeping a common gaming house, and the others of gambling there. Presumably on account of the number of the defendants and the scarcity of accommodation in jail, Mr. Wise did not double the usual penalty as he did the other day, the first and second defendant being fined $25 each and the remainder of the crowd $5 each. Every one of the fines was promptly paid.

Mr. Robinson, instructed by Messrs. Deans and Mossop, moved, before the Acting Chief Justice this afternoon, for a writ of Habeas Corpus, under Section 11 of Ordinance 26 of 1889, to have Li Ng, otherwise known as Loong, brought before the Court. The prisoner, who was committed by Mr. Wise, pending the order of the Governor, on the 14th instant, was charged on the evidence of an accomplice with piracy and murder in September 1890. Mr. Robinson read affidavits showing that the prisoner was at that time in Hongkong and had been a resident here since the beginning of 1889. The Chief Justice adjourned the hearing of the mot on till Tuesday next at 10.30, and stated that he thought affidavits should be filed showing what steps the Magistrate had taken to ascertain how long the prisoner had been living in Hongkong and what report he had made to the Governor on this point.

Five men were brought before Mr. Wise to-day charged with assaulting a Chinese seaman on board a steamer. A. Independent on the 17th inst. and robbing him of $40. The complainant said he had been paid off with $13.00 on the previous day, and of course he at once began to gamble. He lost $10 to the first defendant and paid him. The first defendant indignantly declared that the amount lost was $42.40 and demanded the balance. The complainant refused to pay. Then the defendants got him over to Yau-nati took him away among the hills and bound him in a tree. The first defendant took $40 from him and told him he must either pay some more money at once or sign a promissory note. At last the complainant got them to release him on his promising to get the money at once in Hongkong. On getting across the water the complainant managed to let the police know what was the matter. Such was the complainant's story, but as there was not sufficient evidence to sustain the charge of robbery, his Worship fined the defendants $5 each and ordered them to pay an equal amount each to the complainant as compensation.

A case which is suggestive of the early part of the story of Joseph and his brethren came before Mr. Wise in the Police Court to-day. Two youths named Po Fu and Ng Fat Chai were charged with fraudulently enticing, or decoying, from the colony for an unlawful purpose a boy of eleven, named Chan Hing Young, the son of a rice pounder. From the evidence it appeared that the two defendants suggested to an elder brother of the little boy, a lad of fourteen, that they might make some money by selling his younger brother. The scheme was agreed to and promptly carried into execution. The younger was taken over to Yau-nati and was there sold to the wife of a cargo-boat master for $20. He was unwilling to become the property of the stranger, and his fourteen-year-old brother told him quietly that if he did not like life on a cargo-boat he might jump overboard at the first opportunity. As the transaction was soon discovered he was saved from the necessity of adopting this risky means of escape. The elder boy on going home succeeded in skillfully parrying the maternal questions about his brother, and he apparently thought it was only fair that his mother should get a share of the proceeds from the sale of her own offspring, so he gave her two dollars, explaining that he had picked the money up on the street. The two defendants admitted the charge and were sentenced to six months' hard labour each. As regards the brother of the boy who had been sold, Mr. Wise advised his father to speak him when he got home, which advice the man said would assuredly be followed.

Bank of Persia. The progress made by the Imperial Bank of Persia is the subject of the following interesting paragraphs from the Standard Times:— 'The Imperial Bank of Persia is making steady progress, and we understand that its notes are becoming more popular every day. The Bank's Musulm Comptroller states that it does discount business at 15 per cent., whilst it pays 6 per cent. for money for a term of six to twelve months. The tasar bankers (Gerafe), on the other hand, pay 15 per cent. security for one month for the money lent them, whilst they can let it out at 25 per cent. per annum. Money-lenders who take a weekly interest are not uncommon in Persia; the rate of interest varies in this manner from 15 to 25 per cent., payment and interest being given for the loan, and 15 per cent. per annum for the security. A well-organized establishment like the Bank of Persia has, therefore, great opportunities and ought to obtain brilliant results. The interest rate of 12 per cent., which would be considered unusual in Europe, is regarded as a very moderate one at Teheran, in addition to which every desirable security can be obtained. At Tabriz, Isphahan, Shiraz, and Meshed, money is still more sought after than in the capital; so a good harvest can command public confidence. The Bank of Persia, we understand, has agents at these places.'

The Census of Scotland.—The Scotch census returns issued on Friday show the total population of Scotland, including the shipping in Scotch waters, to be 4,633,403 persons, of whom 1,931,461 are males and 2,081,924 females. The increase is 10,500, or 0.27 per cent. with the year 1881, showing an increase of 207,530; the male increase being 10,463, and the female 143,664. The percentage of increase of the population of Scotland during the decennium has been 7.36; that of the male sex 8.45 and of the female 7.5. The population of Glasgow, during the decennium, has been given as 501,415 in 1881. Edinburgh is given as 261,261, as compared with 234,402 years ago.

The jubilee volume of French was completed with the number 1, which appeared on June 24. Our excellent contemporary since its first appearance in 1841, has increased its circulation to 10,000 copies in the last century. It is a weekly paper, and the chief editor is Mr. Francis, and Mr. Philippe, instructed by Mr. Holmes, appeared for the plaintiff; Mr. Leach and Mr. Robinson, instructed by Messrs. Wotton and Danson, appeared for the defendant.

The hearing was resumed to-day.

Mr. E. J. Adroyd, Acting Chief Justice, said that the case was now adjourned, when compared with the year 1881, show an increase of 207,530; the male increase being 10,463, and the female 143,664.
